

F1R3GAMES BRAND REVIEW

Demographic

The research I did with Claude:

Gen Z—mid-teens to late twenties, few movies and traditional television, and more Discord and Twitch. Around 85 percent of them play games. Most are drawn to social and creator content.

They communicate more in emoji and clips, than older generations, and they are documented to reject a try-hard brand or something too polished and corporate looking. They reward personality and punish polish, and too much gloss reads as cringe. The brands they love feel handmade and a little feral. They don’t want to be marketed to so much as to be included. To them a logo is similar to a profile pic, a sticker, a tag on a stream.

This is the generation feeding the coding pipeline.

What is missing

Some of these work, but they look too polished and corporate
